Prompt:

Read the passage and answer the question.

When the county health department partnered with East Lake College to operate a mobile dental clinic, the goal was not simply to park a van on campus. The clinic travels to neighborhoods where residents may have difficulty reaching regular dental offices because of transportation, cost, or work schedules. Dental hygiene students assist licensed professionals by preparing equipment, recording patient information, and teaching basic prevention skills such as proper brushing and flossing. The program gives residents access to screenings and cleanings, but it also gives students experience with real patients before graduation. Some students are surprised to learn how often dental problems are connected to broader issues such as diet, employment, and access to insurance. Instructors say this is part of the lesson: health care is not limited to procedures performed in a clinic. It also involves understanding the circumstances that affect whether people can seek care in the first place.

Which statement best expresses the central idea of the passage?

- A) A mobile dental clinic can provide community care while giving students practical experience.
- B) Dental hygiene students should work only in traditional dental offices after graduation.
- C) County health departments should replace all college health programs.
- D) Mobile clinics are useful only when they provide emergency treatment.

Prompt:

Read the passage and answer the question.

The city's animal shelter changed its adoption profiles after noticing that many descriptions sounded nearly identical. Instead of listing only a dog's age, breed, and size, staff members began adding observations about behavior: whether the dog enjoyed quiet spaces, liked long walks, or needed time to warm up to new people. The goal was not to make every animal seem perfect, but to help adopters make realistic choices.

What is the main purpose of the revised adoption profiles?

- A) To help potential adopters understand animals' needs and personalities more clearly
- B) To make all dogs at the shelter sound exactly the same
- C) To discourage people from adopting animals with energetic personalities
- D) To replace conversations between shelter staff and adopters

Read the passage and answer the question.

During her first month as a pharmacy technician trainee, Rina focused on speed. She wanted to fill each order quickly, and she felt proud when she finished a shelf of prescriptions before another trainee did. Then her supervisor showed her how one mislabeled bottle could create serious risk. Rina began checking each label against the order before moving to the next task. She still worked efficiently, but she no longer treated speed as the only sign of success.

What can reasonably be inferred about Rina?

- A) She learns to balance efficiency with careful attention to safety.
- B) She decides that speed is always more important than accuracy.
- C) She stops working as a trainee because the job is too difficult.
- D) She believes labels are unnecessary when prescriptions are organized.

A neighborhood association wants to replace several empty lots with small play areas for children. Supporters argue that the lots currently collect trash and attract illegal dumping. They believe play areas would give families safe outdoor spaces close to home. Some residents, however, worry that equipment could be damaged or that noise could disturb nearby apartments. The association is considering durable materials, posted hours, and a volunteer cleanup schedule.

Which statement best describes the association's situation?

- A) It is weighing possible community benefits against concerns about maintenance and noise.
- B) It has rejected the idea of improving the empty lots in any way.

- C) It believes playground equipment should be placed only inside apartment buildings.
- D) It wants to remove all outdoor spaces from the neighborhood.

A photography exhibit titled “Work Hands” shows close-up images of hands rather than faces. One photograph shows a mechanic’s fingers stained with grease; another shows a violin teacher’s hand resting lightly on a student’s bow; a third shows a baker dusting flour from a wooden table. By focusing on hands, the exhibit invites viewers to think about skill, labor, and identity without relying on traditional portraits.

What is the main purpose of focusing on hands in the exhibit?

- A) To show work and identity through physical details connected to skill
- B) To prove that faces are never useful in photography
- C) To make every subject impossible for viewers to recognize
- D) To show that all forms of work require the same tools

Prompt:

Read the two passages and answer the question.

Passage 1:

Companies should allow employees to use standing desks if they want them. Some workers find that standing for part of the day helps them feel more alert and reduces discomfort from sitting for long periods. Giving employees options can make offices more adaptable.

Passage 2:

Standing desks can be useful, but they should not be presented as a simple cure for workplace discomfort. Standing all day can cause fatigue, and some employees may need adjustable chairs, scheduled movement breaks, or ergonomic training instead. Flexibility matters more than any single piece of furniture.

How does Passage 2 respond to Passage 1?

- A) Passage 2 agrees that options can help but argues that standing desks are only one possible solution.
- B) Passage 2 claims that employees should not be allowed to adjust their workspaces.
- C) Passage 2 argues that standing desks solve every workplace health concern.
- D) Passage 2 says that office furniture has no effect on employee comfort.

The essay about public clocks argues that they once served as shared anchors in town life. A clock tower told workers when shifts began, reminded children when to return home, and helped travelers know whether they had missed a train. Today, most people carry phones that display the time, yet public clocks still give streets a sense of rhythm and history. The author suggests that their value has changed rather than disappeared.

Which statement best summarizes the passage?

- A) Public clocks are no longer useful because phones display the time.
- B) Public clocks once served practical purposes and now also contribute to a place's character.
- C) Clock towers should be removed from towns because travelers no longer need them.
- D) People should rely only on public clocks rather than personal devices.

In the poem, the speaker describes a laundromat late at night: socks turning behind glass doors, fluorescent lights buzzing overhead, and strangers folding shirts in silence. The speaker says the dryers “kept small suns spinning in metal rooms.” This image transforms a routine chore into something unexpectedly warm and almost comforting.

What effect does the image of “small suns” most likely create?

- A) It makes the dryers seem warm and quietly comforting.
- B) It suggests that the laundromat is dangerously overheated.
- C) It shows that the speaker dislikes doing laundry at night.
- D) It explains why the lights are brighter than usual.

A financial aid advisor tells students to read scholarship requirements carefully before writing essays. A prompt asking about leadership may not require an official title such as club president or team captain. A student who organized childcare for younger siblings, trained new coworkers, or helped neighbors during a storm may also have meaningful leadership experience. The advisor encourages students to interpret prompts thoughtfully rather than disqualify themselves too quickly.

Which sentence best states the advisor's point?

- A) Students should recognize that leadership can appear in many forms.
- B) Students should apply only for scholarships that require no essay.
- C) Official titles are the only reliable evidence of leadership.
- D) Scholarship prompts should be ignored when students have work experience.

The hiking guide tells beginners to check trail difficulty, weather, water availability, and return time before leaving. It also advises hikers to tell someone their planned route. These steps may seem excessive for a short hike, but conditions can change quickly. A simple checklist helps hikers prevent small problems from becoming serious ones.

Why does the guide recommend using a checklist?

- A) To help hikers prepare for changing conditions and reduce risk
- B) To make short hikes as difficult as possible
- C) To encourage beginners to hike without telling anyone
- D) To replace the need for water on the trail

The article on farmers' markets notes that prices are sometimes higher than those in large grocery stores. However, the article also explains that markets can create direct relationships between growers and customers, keep more money within the local economy, and allow shoppers to ask how food was produced. The author does not claim that farmers' markets are the best option for every purchase but argues that their value should not be measured by price alone.

Which statement best describes the author's reasoning?

- A) Farmers' markets should be evaluated by benefits beyond price, such as local connection and transparency.
- B) Farmers' markets should replace every grocery store in large cities.
- C) Prices are the only factor shoppers should consider when buying food.
- D) Customers should avoid asking growers questions about food production.

At first, Andre thought that asking for feedback on his resume would make him look unprepared. When a career counselor reviewed it, however, she praised his experience but pointed out that several bullet points described duties rather than accomplishments. Andre revised one line from "answered customer calls" to "resolved an average of thirty customer questions per shift." He realized that feedback did not erase his experience; it helped him present it more clearly.

What lesson does Andre learn?

- A) Feedback can help a person communicate strengths more effectively.
- B) Resumes should list only job titles and avoid specific details.
- C) Career counselors usually ignore a student's work experience.
- D) Customer-service jobs should never be included on resumes.

TSIA2-ES7-001

Section: Essay

Type: essay

Prompt:

Some students choose a major before beginning college, while others need time to explore different fields. Some people believe colleges should require students to attend career exploration workshops before selecting a major so they can learn about job options, salaries, required skills, and transfer pathways. Others believe students should be free to choose a major without additional requirements because they already receive advice from family, teachers, or personal research.

Assignment:

Write an essay of 300–600 words in which you develop your point of view on the issue presented in the passage. Support your position with reasoning and examples from your reading, studies, experience, or observations.

Model Guidance:

A strong response should clearly state a position on whether colleges should require career exploration workshops before students select a major. The essay should maintain focus, organize ideas logically, and support the position with specific reasons and examples. Strong responses may consider the benefits of informed decision-making as well as the concern that extra requirements can take time. The writing should use varied sentence structure, demonstrate control of Standard English conventions, and show thoughtful reasoning.

Rubric:

Score 8: The essay presents a clear, insightful position; develops ideas thoroughly with specific and persuasive examples; is logically organized; uses precise language and varied sentence structure; and shows strong control of Standard English conventions.

Score 7: The essay presents a clear position; develops ideas effectively with relevant support; is well organized; uses appropriate language; and contains only minor errors.

Score 6: The essay presents a reasonable position; develops ideas adequately; has a clear structure; shows general language control; and may include some errors that do not interfere with meaning.

Score 5: The essay presents a position but may support it unevenly; organization is present but basic; language control is adequate; and errors may occasionally distract the reader.

Score 4: The essay shows a limited or unclear position; development is thin, general, or repetitive; organization may be weak; and errors may interfere with meaning.

Score 3: The essay attempts to address the issue but has minimal support, weak organization, and frequent language errors.

Score 2: The essay is seriously underdeveloped, poorly organized, or difficult to understand because of major errors.

Score 1: The essay shows little ability to develop a response and may be extremely brief, confusing, or mostly unrelated.

Score 0: blank, off-topic, too short, incoherent, or non-English response
